

The International Society for Criminology (ISC) was founded in Rome, Italy in 1938. It is the only worldwide organization in the field of criminology and criminal justice. Its objective is to support activities and research designed to produce a better understanding of the crime phenomenon on an international scale. The Society promotes the prevention of crime as well along with improving the procedures used by the various criminal justice systems. Its activities, therefore, focus both on scientific and practical issues.

The International Society for Criminology is a non-governmental organization and many of its members occupy senior positions in their countries and in international institutions. The Society enjoys advisory status at the United Nations and the Council of Europe, and participates in UNESCO's work. The International Society for Criminology is one of the most active and influential scholarly associations at the forefront in addressing the challenges and problems posed by crime and deviance and in finding solutions that also fully respect human rights and democratic values. The World Congresses of Criminology have been held under the auspices of the International Society of Criminology, since 1938. In this century, congresses were held in Rio de Janeiro (2003), Philadelphia (2005), Barcelona (2008), Kobe, Japan (2011) and Monterrey, Mexico (2014). All were successful, heavily attended, and well covered by the media.

The ISC publishes the International Annals of Criminology on an annual basis, organizes World Congresses of Criminology every three years, as well as International Courses in Criminology on a regular basis.

The last World Congress, was held in August 2014 in Monterrey, Mexico and focused on gangs, trafficking and insecurity. The 2014 edition of the International Annals of Criminology will contain a wide range of papers from the plenary speeches at the Monterrey conference. The last International Course in Criminology was organised in Istanbul, Turkey, in May 2011 and dealt with the origins of restorative justice and its fields of application.

IN MEMORIAM : CARLO MORSELLI (1969-2020)

C'est avec une immense tristesse que toute l'équipe du Centre vous fait part du décès, à l'âge de 51 ans, de notre très cher ami et collègue, Carlo Morselli. Son décès est survenu le 14 octobre 2020, au terme d'une longue et courageuse lutte menée contre la maladie.

Impliqué de façon indéfectible au Centre depuis 2 décennies, Carlo y fut tout d'abord affilié comme étudiant-chercheur, puis comme chercheur régulier dès son embauche à l'École de criminologie en 2001. Ses qualités de leader l'ont ensuite amené à occuper successivement les rôles de directeur adjoint de 2010 à 2014, puis de directeur de 2015 à 2019. Sa vision du CICC a grandement contribué à l'expansion et au rayonnement de ce dernier et il laisse une empreinte et une contribution à la criminologie inestimables qui dépasseront largement les limites du Québec.

IN MEMORIAM : DENIS SZABO (1929-2018)

Criminology pioneer and former ISC president Denis Szabo passes away: Born in Budapest in 1929, he studied at the universities of Budapest, Louvain and Paris. He joined the University of Montreal in 1958 where he introduced the teaching of criminology by creating the Department of Criminology, which served as a model for the training of criminologists across Canada. Founded in 1969 as the International Center for Comparative Criminology, it played an important role in the development of comparative international research. Director of research or consultant to different commissions of inquiry on the penal system (Prévost, Ouimet, Le Dain), he participated in the development of a criminal policy of humanistic inspiration in Quebec and Canada. He was a consultant to the French and Hungarian governments. President (1978-85) and then Honorary President of the International Society of Criminology, he contributed to the influence of Canada in the field of criminal sciences and criminology. Honorary doctor of the Universities of Siena, ELTE/Budapest, Aix-Marseille and the University of Athens, he was honorary president of the International Association of Criminologists of French language. A member of the Royal Society of Canada and the Hungarian Academy of Sciences (1975), an Officer of the Order of Canada (1985), he was also a Commander of the National Order of Merit of Hungary and the Republic of Ivory Coast. He is the author of numerous books translated into half a dozen foreign languages: Incest in Urban Settings (1958), Crimes and Cities (1960), Criminology (1965), Criminology and Criminal Policy (1978), Science and crimes (1986), From Anthropology to Comparative Criminology (1993), Treatise on Empirical Criminology

(1994). Founder of the journal Criminologie (Montreal, 1968). He has been Honorary Scientific Director of the International Journal of Criminology and Technical Police (Geneva) since 1980. His book, Crimes et villes (1960), which was based on his doctoral thesis, got a prize of UNESCO. Our sincere condolences to the family and friends of Denis Szabo.

XVII WORLD CONGRESS OF CRIMINOLOGY: Monterrey, Mexico
GANGS, TRAFFICKING AND INSECURITY: EMPOWERING THE COMMUNITY

Programme

The XVII Congress takes into account some of the most serious and cogent problems facing our society these days.

The spread of gangs involved in various criminal activities and violence is a major concern for many countries, especially since it has become internationalized.

Trafficking in people, animals, arms, legal and illegal drugs, and other goods is a major phenomenon of our times, facilitated, ironically, by technological and electronic innovations that have made travel, moving people around the globe, transferring funds internationally, and communicating instantaneously relatively easy, inexpensive, and difficult to detect.

Powerful and vast economic interests, the profit motive challenged by fierce competition, and the widespread consumerism of today are among the driving forces behind human exploitation, indentured servitude, and even slavery.

Insecurity is a foremost concern for millions of citizens in several countries who face on a daily basis the threat of crime, violence, kidnapping, sexual and other assault, break-ins and theft of their valuables. Thousands are at times forced to move to other parts of a city or of a country or even migrate in order to avoid victimization.

Thus, the Monterrey Congress will provide a platform for learning, debating and attempting to address these cogent challenges and serious problems affecting our world today from an international perspective.

The Congress welcomes different forms of presentations, from the traditional “papers” to roundtables, author meets critics sessions, literary and artistic expressions, community meetings, posters, workshops and more.

We want the Congress to be a dynamic, high energy, and creative event that offers high quality scholarly and research material, data, and insights along with more concrete, practical, solution-oriented debates and collaborations. Literature, theatre and visual arts are welcome as well.
